SCHOLASTIC FADS AND FANCIES

By REV. JONES I. CORRIGAN, S. J., Boston College.

MAGNIFICATION is largely responsible for our inefficient schools. The teachers' energies are scattered too much. College entrance boards and professors of freshmen in the colleges are wondering why boys and girls, newly arrived from high school cannot write simple English sentences. The fads and fancies of the "magnification" program have squandered valuable time that should have been devoted to educational essentials.

American individualism must make a stand against further enlargement of state functions in the schools. The magnification process has progressed so far already that many functions proper to the home have been taken over by the schools.

Not only have we free schools and free books, but free lunch, free clothes and free transportation. In the schools the state inoculates the children against smallpox, insures them against toothache, examines them for eyestrain, searches their inward parts for adenoids. Then there are trained nurses to inspect their food, to supervise their digestion, to feel their pulse, to test their sputum. The trend is clearly socialistic. It is weakening their sturdy American individualism, without which democracy dies.

Magnification is responsible for our luxurious, expensive high school plants, when thousands of our younger children are still housed in miserable portables. It is expensive, wasteful and inefficient. It is a vicious policy resulting from paternal ignorance or indifference to school matters. If taxes are high and the cost of living is high, the "magnification" of the state in the educational sphere is a partial explanation of both.

ENVIRONMENT CAUSE OF CRIME

By MISS MARY VAN ELEECK, Russell Sage Foundation.

An increasing number of people today believe individuals are not predisposed to crime, but become criminals because of unfortunate factors in their background that may have warped their proper development. Crime is the act of the individual, but it is worth while to find out whether communities can create conditions which tend to promote law observance by the individual.

Communities long ago recognized the good health of the individual is largely dependent on the kind of a community in which he lives. Just as clean, modern communities make for good health, so do proper surroundings help the individual to remain within the law.

We are trying to find answers to questions showing the community's share of the responsibility for crime, because that information will indicate what remedial measures may be devised by the community to prevent lawbreaking.

The question may be put constructively this way: If a community wishes to approach more closely to complete law observance, what conditions will be most favorable to this end in the occupational life of the individual and the economic life of the community? Included in this are the social and living conditions which the occupations—the wages paid, steadiness of employment and working hours—make possible.

NARROWNESS IN EDUCATION

By DR. W. W. COMFORT, President Haverford College.

This country has placed an over-emphasis on vocational education, and as a result is turning out "human robots" who rush madly about seeking pleasure, but failing to find real spiritual satisfaction.

Education in America has failed for three reasons. First of all, educators have no material to work on every year and have to start fresh at the bottom in seeking perfection. Second, there are so many seeking an education here who are not capable of obtaining one. Third, there is a complete lack of any substantial agreement here on what education really means.

There is a tendency to specialize all education here. But vocational education is narrow and inflexible and strictly limited. It is possible to be successful in a vocation and yet to be a complete dumbbell in all other ways.

The type of vocational education does not fit men for living. We are running the chance here of being all capacity of enjoying our leisure time.

In America we have to go out, dash, or rush about to spend a lot of money before we are conscious of any kind of pleasure.

EDUCATORS TOO POORLY PAID

By ROBERT M. HUTCHINS, President Chicago University.

Large college classes, the low salaries of professors and the overwork imposed upon them are the great tragedies of American education. There are many important colleges in the United States where the maximum salary for a professor is $2,500 a year.

Can you expect them all to be men who marry for money and work for love? These are revolving janitor's wages. I said that once before and it raised a storm of protest, strongly enough, among the professors. And I may add that one estimable janitor in Chicago took violent umbrage at the comparison.

America does not yet value education enough to pay enough to secure proper education and if we do not want to be regarded as the richest and most uneducated people in the world we must see that something is done about this state of affairs.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING BEST

By A. F. BRAYSON, Chicago Financier.

Radio, talking and motion picture and other mediums of advertising still are and probably always will be supplementary to the printed word.

Newspapers reach persons interested in advertising. We know that we do not know and cannot learn how many persons and whom the radio reaches.

All advertising pays the advertiser and the buying public as well. Some of it we have to use and take our chances on the result, but in the general sense the saying "It pays to advertise" is one that is well spoken.

WEST PARIS

There were no services at the Universalist Church Sunday morning on account of the heavy rain Saturday night which overflowed the path to the church, making it impassable.

The Good Will Society met Wednesday with Rev. Eleanor B. Forbes for the purpose of tying a comforter. A picnic dinner was enjoyed in the afternoon the Daughters of Union Veterans met with Miss Forbes and also tied a comforter.

Hattie Bane has been ill from tonsillitis but is recovering. Lewis J. Mann, son of E. J. Mann, has been very ill from pneumonia, and although pneumonia has subsided remains in a dangerous condition. Gertrude Mann has been ill from pneumonia but is recovering.

Charles F. Barden visited his daughter, Mrs. Arthur O. Wellcome, and family, at Waltham, Mass., a few days the first of the week.

Vernor Smith is sufficiently recovered from pneumonia to be up and around the house.

Frank Robbins remains very ill at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Albion Abbott.

West Paris Village Corporation held its annual meeting Tuesday evening, March 4. Assessors elected are A. T. Hollis, L. H. Emery and Albion Abbott, clerk, Miss Clara Berry; collector, H. H. Gammon. The territory of the corporation has been extended, and it was voted to raise $500 for electric lighting.

Onward Rebekah Lodge observed past grand night and roll call Tuesday evening. A very interesting meeting was held.

Mrs. Mary E. Wyman was a guest of Mrs. Evelyn Gray several days last week.

Mrs. Roland Banlett, R. N., of Auburn, came Sunday, March 2, to call on Lewis J. Mann. Mrs. Banlett has nursed Lewis through two serious illnesses.

Mrs. Fremont Whitman and Nelson Whitman went to Augusta Thursday to visit Mr. Whitman at the State Hospital.

Clarence W. Smith, who passed away at his home at Trap Corner Monday afternoon, March 3, from a serious illness from a sore throat, with which he was taken two weeks previous to his death. Mr. Smith was born in Otisfield, 31 years ago, the son of William Smith and the late Mrs. Sadie (Whitman) Smith.

He married Miss Mildred Durell of Otisfield, who survives with their daughter Frances, aged nine, and son Dwight, four years of age. Besides those above mentioned, surviving are two brothers, Elmer of Auburn and Verner of West Paris, a sister, Mrs. Marietta, wife of Albert Penley of Otisfield, a grandfather, Jacob Whitman, and other relatives. Mr. Smith was a member of Crooked River Lodge of Masons, Belster's Mills. He was a graduate of Oxford High School.

Mr. Smith came to West Paris 10 years ago, working first for the Ellingwood Turning Co., and later was employed at the J. B. Ham Co. mill. About five years ago he purchased the trucking business of Leslie Estes, and also engaged in selling ice and coal. He had established a good business by square dealing and strict attention to business. He was a young man whom everybody liked, genial, kind hearted, and full of cheer and energy.

The funeral was held at his late home Wednesday afternoon. Crooked River Lodge sent a delegation, and the service was very largely attended by relatives and friends. There was a profusion of beautiful flowers, a beautiful piece among them from West Paris friends. The remains were placed in the receiving tomb at Norway.

SOUTH WATERFORD

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Ballaban from Wilder, Vt., and little daughter Norma have been visiting Mr. Ballaban's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Pike. Mrs. Pike, who has been sick, is a little better.

Several from this village attended the social and dance at the Wilkins Community House at the Flat. A good time was enjoyed by all.

The Grange meeting last Saturday was postponed on account of bad weather.

There was a devotional service at the Grange Hall Sunday evening. All members of the staff were present. We were glad to welcome Mr. Bull back. Rev. A. W. Sparks was present as a visitor and had a message of good will for us. The moving picture, "The Call of Simon," was shown. Next Sunday there will be a service at the home of W. R. Horton.

Will Abbott is sick.

Several of the Indians met at Mrs. Ida Holden's last Wednesday afternoon. A good bit of sewing was accomplished for the annual fair which will take place in the summer.

Mrs. Harriet Brown, who has been sick with a bad cold, is better. First signs of spring. Little Reginald Kimball, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kimball, has plowed his garden under the plow, and planted it to pumpkins and squashes.

DOUGHBOY OF U. S. ARMY IS NOW MAN OF MANY DUTIES

Changes Made in Arms of the Infantryman, War Department

Reveals.

Washington.—Private Terrence Mul-vaney was a lance corporal once and an infantryman always, as Kipling fans readily will recall. He and his fellow doughboys the world over would be chagrined and saddened were they introduced to the modern infantryman

as visualized by the United States War department.

An infantryman in these experimental, post-war days is as likely to yank

a lanyard or tool a caterpillar truck

over plowed ground as he is to muzzle his chin against his rifle butt or brandish a bayonet. What the infantryman has come to has been revealed by the War department.

If experiments are successful, the infantryman of the next war, if any,

will be a composite machine gunner, artilleryman, automatic rifleman, and whatnot with here and there an individual possessing the familiar rifle, revolver, and bayonet.

After experiments at Fort Benning,

Ga., Secretary of War Hurley has authorized organization of the Twenty-ninth infantry as an experimental battalion for further investigation of new arms and tactics. The purpose is "to give the maximum striking power and capacity for sustained effort without disproportionate loss of mobility or increase of vulnerability." The war strength infantry battalion to be experimented with will consist of battalion headquarters, battalion headquarters company, three rifle companies, two caliber .30 machine gun companies, and one automatic rifle company.

Two instead of one automatic rifle

per squad in rifle companies.

AFTER THE STORM

Beautiful trees of a summer now past are all bent and twisted with winter's cold blast.

They bear their cold burden with endurance supreme.

Far better than we bear our burdens, I mean.

Ice covered, like crystals, they gleam

in the sun.

Though bent and broken to rise

they've begun.

They'll come forth in splendor—will rise from their fall.

And soon in the springtime will gladden us all.

On mountains, in valley each laden tree

sings

Of a courage undaunted, mid the snow

winter brings.

Soon the sunshine of spring will to them strength impart

As they stand in their glory, a balm to each heart.
